ALL YOU NEED TO KNOW FOR THE SUBMISSION OF SAMPLES PRODUCTS OF ANIMAL ORIGIN TO BRAZIL

It is usual to send samples of products of animal origin for evaluation of possible customers, before the sale, or even its registration in Brazil.

This guide has the function of facilitating this process and enabling foreign companies to send their products easier.

The International Agricultural Surveillance System - Vigiagro, is the agency of the Agricultural Defense Secretary of MAPA, responsible for the activities of international agricultural surveillance.

In order to send the samples without commercial value, they are exempt from the need for prior authorization of the importing establishment, recognition of the inspection system of the exporting country or the labeling approval of the imported product.

That means, even if your establishment is not yet approved for export to Brazil, or your product is not yet registered, you can still send your samples !!!

It will be necessary to request the consent of import with volume of samples and purpose, consistent with the request to send a sample of non-commercial value.

The competent authority of the country of origin shall issue a health certificate or official document supporting the export of the product for clearance of cargo at the Brazilian ports of entry.

The DSA (Animal Health Department) must be requested to apply for such importation.

In short...

Documentary Requirement:

- a) Agricultural Transit Declaration of International Transit (DAT);
- b) Import Licensing with authorized shipment;
- c) Original International Health Certificate or official document that supports the export of the product;
- d) Bill of lading.

We wish you a smooth send, and great deals!!
Welcome to Brazil!!!
